 Edo Period Relics: Okute-Juku and Hosokute-juku along the Nakasendo

 Step back in time along the historic Nakasendo, a key highway connecting Kyoto and Edo (modern-day Tokyo) during the Edo Period (1603-1868).

 In Mizunami City, discover Okute-juku and Hosokute-juku, two beautifully preserved post towns that retain the charm and atmosphere of the Edo Period.

 Surrounding these towns, you can experience real traditional Japanese countryside with historic temples and shrines, old-style houses, tranquil rural landscapes, and mountains ablaze with autumn colours.

 An on-demand bus will run between these two towns on weekends and holidays from October 11th and November 24th, so access to these hidden gems has never been easier!

 This autumn, escape the crowds and explore somewhere special, where Japanese history and nature coexist in harmony.

🚗 Announcement of "Mukao Car" holiday demand transportation

Bringing the Nakasendo post towns closer to you!

Mizunami City is home to the historic Nakasendo post towns of Otakijuku and Hosokutejuku, but currently there is no public transportation from the nearest stations (Mizunami Station and Kamada Station), so access is limited.

For this reason, we will be operating a special vehicle called "Mukao Car" by reservation only on weekends and holidays from October 11th to November 24th!
